

In the illustrated Jerusalem described, are a few lamp shades such as are used here to lower the tone of the light for working. They are thrown over white funnel shaped paper shades, or a hat-jour as they are called here.
These are cut & given by a lady in the house.
There is a picture of the <sup>Anti</sup> corn law Pagans, given by Madame Barbomman.

at all right as a set of (purple) signs of a society of antiquaries. The wrought caps made, are a pair of long sleeves as they should be called. These are the beginning of a new style, or lower sleeves. I note & just the things to wear with you can see few. They are of this shape when made & on the arm.

Dear Lucia. Herewith you have a few Notes for the Fair. Every thing is marked in nos. Thus, No 175 means $1.75

First. Caps There are 48, Caps, Fanchons our estimate is 249.50. They cost, with the box & packing here, 59 dollars. They are the latest models, & the laces are the best imitations of Valenciennes & point de Malines, which can be washed & made new again as many times as you will; or, as the French say, blanchi à neuf. Small flowers & narrow Ribbons are beginning to be worn & I send a proportion accordingly. Those that have no strings are to be fastened to the head with a jeweller pin on each side of the head about where the organ of ideal-ity is found. Merch. These caps were not bought out of shop windows, but originated in the very heart of a first rate Magazine.

In selling them, be sure to have a young lady of great Beauty, to try them upon; for beauty is the natural estate of every human creature, & consequently caps made for human creatures cannot be done justice to in any other way. Let it be remembered, that the patterns alone of these caps are worth the money.

The little fanchons are to be fastened to the head under the bows at the side, & the lappets let to fly.

There are 2 night caps. They are of most fashionable patterns. Like Countess Suerst or Boston members who wish to work for next fair bring these for models.

2 great inkstands in the form of shepherd & shepherds. These are extremely rare & curious. They are called Dresden China of the time of Louis Quinze. I bought them in a curiosity shop (what the french call a Marchande de Bric-à-brac.) they are a part of the spoils of a sign-orient establishment which has broken up. A dealer in porcelain who brought me home some other things I had purchased was rivetted in admiration before this shepherd & Choe. I asked what I ought to have given for them. He said "any price" "Those who value these things would as readily give 500 francs for them as one." They have been the admiration of every one who has seen them and even in Paris are unmatchable. With their white & gold pedestals they are proper to ornament the chimneys of two drawing rooms which have the fire place at each end with mirrors which will show the backs <sup>of the figures,</sup> or a Boudoir Mantelpiece. I think they ought, as objects of art & with something of a character of antiquity attaching to them, to bring $30 each. They are ornaments for palaces. & very useful as I have found, the basket which the figure holds being either card-receiver, pen-tray, Jewell-tray or what not, and if the figure stands on a white marble gueridon, it is a most beautiful inkstand. It is cleaned by a very soft brush with soap suds, & then pumped on, & left to dry.

The admirable relief of the wreath of flowers is wonderful. One finger of the lady, is gone but that must no more detract from its price than if it were a newly discovered statue of Rhodius with a finger broken. They cost me $8.00 each, or 80 francs for both.

There is a 3<sup>d</sup> inkstand, very splendid which cost me $5.00. & which ought to have cost me $20. every body tells me. perhaps you can get $10.<sup>or 15.</sup> Having been painted for a Transatlantic Bazaar for the poor here by a Lady, who was determined to sell it at any price, I have it at a quarter of its cost at the shop. The little china things of this shape are called porte-violettes. They are for a little bunch of small flowers such as violets. The two great flower pots have stands to them.

Gres.

This is the pottery, which is so brittle that I cannot but fear. I have chosen little things & such as had not delicate spreading handles, though they are less pretty. also I have chosen the light colors which are not so perfect but then being less baked they will be less brittle. The great Prothe Kave is for a green-house, a garden, or for an immense bouquet in a drawing room upon a festive occasion. They cost $5.00 each here, but I obtained mine on more favorable conditions. i.e. $1.75 at You cannot ask too much for this, if it reaches you whole. There is a little tête à tête service, for which you are to ask $10. there are 9 pieces of it, cups & all. There is no tray. it cost 10 francs or $2.00

Objets de Paris.
This a name given to a sort of inlaid work of which you will receive 18 pieces, <sup>2 work boxes, 3 perfume do. jewel do. perfume do. The pieces are wrapped</sup> you will see at once that these have cost dear here. at the corner of the Rue de la Paix they ask $ 8.00 for the best glove-box. you must double that price of course. I went to the fabrique for them & got them at a much less price. The work box with the Medallion of Flowers on the top is something extraordinary. The painting is by France, the first artist in this style, & is on alabaster.
It cost the box artist $ 2.50 & this little painting also & she bought it by the dozen of the painter. I saw his bill. That work-box must bring $ 18.00. It is a thing that will last a life-time, of the neatest fashion in the finest taste. The Scent-boxes or perfume cases.
The maker calls them Cases à odeur, are something beyond admiration. It is the sublime of box making.
& the green blue & gold is thought a flight beyond humanity. Each one of these objects costs just as a setting of jewels costs. The mother of pearl, shell, or Mosaic &c is wrought prodigiously.
